First Pick Handmade features fall and winter collections from over 30 Canadian indie fashion and accessory designers – September 15- 16 at Heritage Hall

(Vancouver, BC) – Focusing solely on Canadian handmade fashion and accessories, First Pick Handmade www.firstpickhandmade.com again transforms Heritage Hall into a 3,300-square foot pop up boutique department store on Saturday, September 15th to Sunday, September 16th, at 3102 Main Street, Vancouver. This fall and winter fashion and accessory only event features head to toe handmade fashions with several designers debuting their seasonal lines. Canadian designers new to the First Pick Handmade family include: Anian Manufacturing (eco flannels to hats and sweaters); and Dogwood Denim Apparel (women's and men's custom jeans).

"Now more than ever, consumers can make a difference by supporting Canadian designers and the environment with shopping locally and sustainably," says Janna Hurtzig, First Pick Handmade Founder, and Curator.

About First Pick Handmade:

Janna Hurtzig, of the local Winterlux Recycled Cashmere label, saw a need for a local fashion and accessories only show like First Pick Handmade. She continues to curate the show with the goal to create access for consumers to Canadian designers. Since 1998, Hurtzig has been part of Vancouver's handmade scene in numerous roles such as vendor and show coordinator, so she knows what makes for a good experience is for both the designer and the consumer. Hurtzig has been a co-organizer for Shiny Fuzzy Muddy, one of Vancouver's most popular and successful Holiday markets currently celebrating their 16th year. For the past 11 years, Hurtzig has sold her handmade designs at popular shows across Canada.
